Function: Backup and Restore

The Client-Side Backup and Restore function allows you to create a backup of your container. The backup file will be stored on your computer.

The Server-Side Backup and Restore function allows you to create a backup of your container and store it on your server. The number of server-side backups you can create is defined in your hosting plan. Please note that if you are restoring your system, all your current system data will be lost since it will be replaced with backup.
